

Publication Name: Evening Standard
Circulation: 897,500
Date: 25 July 2018

EveningStandard.

Homes & Property | Art events

Kate Gordon

"I understand your husband drowned and left you two million dollars. Can you imagine, two million dollars, and he couldn't even read or write."
"Yeah, she said, and he couldn't swim either."

Exercise your chuckle muscles

JOKES are a serious business — and as much about the person telling the joke, as the listener's response. These works make you look and look again, as you think through just what is meant. We love Richard Prince's Joke Paintings but why not stop by Skarstedt Gallery and decide for yourself? Prince's witty and subversive humour is slightly addictive. On view are his flat, monochrome canvases with jokes neatly reproduced, allowing the message to come raging through. Case in point: "I never had a penny to my name, so I changed my name." You might just find yourself laughing out loud.

● Skarstedt Gallery, Benet Street, SW1 (skarstedtgallery.com).

Homes & Property | Art events

Artistry in residence

Kate Gordon

Exercise your chuckle muscles

DON'T PAY FOR BUSINESS INSURANCE YOU DON'T NEED. ENOUGH SAID.

Send an E-mail or Ferry in the past

GET A QUOTE TODAY! WE WANT TO BATE ON PRICE.

EXERCISE YOUR CHUCKLE MUSCLES

SKARSTEDT GALLERY